

18 years of heritage
education

Prehistory Inset Day

Wednesday 5 July 2017, 3-6pm

Are you teaching prehistory? We can help you bring the topic to life.

Our experts have designed an FREE Inset day to boost your knowledge and inspire your Prehistory topic; Changes in Britain from Stone Age to Iron Age, held at Celtic Harmony Camp, the largest reconstructed Iron Age settlement in the UK.

Learning outcomes:

- Enhance your subject knowledge
- Increase your confidence in teaching the 800,000 years of history
- Curriculum-linked activities and resources for the classroom

Workshops:

- Introduction to Stone Age in Neolithic Encampment with ideas for classroom activities.
- Interactive Talk of 'Changes in Britain from Stone Age to Iron Age' with artefact handling and timeline
- Primitive Skills with activities such as weaving on warp weighted looms and making cordage.

The day will also include a tour of the camp, and the opportunity to try some hands-on activities including grinding grain, weaving and archery.

"Come and visit the camp,
and try your hand at some awesome activities"

"I learned a huge amount about an area of history for which I had no existing subject knowledge, and there were some great ideas for me to take back to my colleagues."

Helen Paine, Applecroft School

Guarantee your place on this FREE Inset day, call 01438 718543 or visit:
www.celticharmony.org/schools

Celtic Harmony is an award winning charity, providing hands-on cultural heritage education of ancient Britain to increase understanding of the natural world and create a more sustainable way of life for future generations. Charity No: 1156199